LISTS CLOSED TUESDAY FOR PRIMARY SEPT. 21

Ira G. Burket in Field for Nomination for Prothonotary.

CAMPAIGN WARMING UP

Candidates for County Offices Have But Three Weeks Longer in Which to Conduct Canvass for Nominations—Hot Time Ahead.

A large number of petitions were filed on Tuesday, the last day for candidates for county, borough and township offices to file their papers with the County Commissioners to have their names printed on the ballot for the primary election on September 21st. No withdrawals of petitions may be filed with the County Commissioners after 4 o'clock Friday, September 3d. A withdrawal must be accompanied with the affidavit of the candidate.

Among the interesting developments of the week was the entry in the field of Ira G. Burket, of Halfmoon Township, as a candidate for Republican nomination for Prothonotary. Mr. Burket, whose home is at Stormstown, concluded to become a candidate at the instance of numerous Republicans in Halfmoon Township who were desirous of having their section of the county represented on the Republican ticket at the primaries. Mr. Burket is well and favorably known and, having entered the field, says that he expects to wage an active contest for the nomination. Mr. Burket is a merchant at Stormstown and is a thoroughly experienced business man. Should he be nominated and elected he would assume the office of Prothonotary admirably qualified to administer its important duties.

Petitions filed included the following:—

For the primary election there will be printed separate ballots for the non-partisan Judgeship also for the Republican Democratic and Washington parties. The Washington party ballots will be blank, no Washington party petitions having been filed. There will be no Prohibitionist or Socialist party ballots printed since neither party polled a vote at the last November election equal to five percent of the highest vote cast. This requirement is fixed by law. H. B. Scott, for Assembly, polled the highest vote, which was 3475. Five percent of this would be 173¾. The Socialist vote last November was 171 and the Prohibitionist was 172. One or two more votes for each party would have entitled them to a party ballot at the approaching primary.

Chief Clerk Meyer, at the County Commissioners' office, yesterday classified the petitions filed. He reported that there were 386 Democratic and 435 Republican petitions. There were 33 petitions filed for county offices, alone.

TWO DRY CANDIDATES

W. C. T. U. Speaker Urges Voters to Support Dale or Johnston for Judge.

Emphasizing the fact that the W. C. T. U. is not taking sides as between Clement Dale and J. Kennedy Johnston for Judge, since both are declared temperance candidates, J. Mitchell Bennetts, State Anti-Saloon speaker, concluded his address in the public square here Tuesday night by saying:

"There are five candidates for Judge in Centre County. Three of them are wet. Two are not. See to it that you do not vote wet."

Mr. Bennetts' appeal to his audience to vote for either of the two avowed temperance candidates is in line with the recent announcement by Miss Rebecca N. Rhoads, president of the W. C. T. U., that the organization has not indorsed one as against the other. The W. C. T. U. wishes it made clear that the organization has no support to tender Judge Orvis, N. B. Spangler or H. C. Quigley, who are classed as "wet" candidates for Judge. The election of either Mr. Dale or Mr. Johnston would be acceptable to the W. C. T. U.

The meeting addressed here by Mr. Bennetts Tuesday evening was held in the open air, and he demonstrated his ability as an effective speaker by holding his audience to the end. His remarks were free from personalities, although he pounded out one argument after another with telling effect. He concentrated his efforts upon the one chief point that liquor can and will be eliminated when all who are against it vote that way. Praying 364 days in the year against liquor and voting for liquor on the 365th day will never change matters, pointedly remarked the speaker. There were some in the audience who have never taken a pronounced stand in favor of temperance but they paid the speaker a compliment by remaining to the conclusion of his address and listening attentively to all that he had to say.

Extra! Extra!!

Hush baby! Now we hear it rumored that a well known local Democrat contemplates bringing legal proceedings against one of the five candidates for Judge on the charge of sending through the mails a letter containing threats to do him bodily injury.

State Eleven at Work.

The Penn State football squad reported on Tuesday for practice. The outlook the coaches say, is for a strong eleven this year.

153-FT. FURNACE STACK "THROWN" WITH EASE

Experts Toppled Over High Structure in Short Order.

ONE AT NITTANY NEXT

Spectators Surprised at Simplicity of Plan for Razing Stack at Plant of Old Bellefonte Furnace Co.—Little Dynamite Used.

The large steel and brick stack at the old Bellefonte Furnace Co. was "thrown" last Thursday afternoon, the operation marking virtually the last chapter in demolishing the plant that some years ago gave employment to hundreds of men.

"Throwing" a giant steel and brick stack, 153 feet high, is as "simple as falling off a log" when handled by experts. That tumbled over last Thursday came down as nicely as could be wished for, although with a crash that was heard for quite a distance.

Most persons thought the stack would be upset by means of dynamite exploded in large quantities at the base. This proved not to be the case. The stack was toppled over by means of a wire cable attached to it about half way to the top, the other end of the cable being drawn by a hoisting engine.

To understand how the job was handled one should first have some idea of the general construction of the stack. The base was of steel, extending upward 16 feet and fastened to a concrete foundation by thick bolts. From the steel base the stack tapered to a diameter of 4 feet, 4 inches, the exterior being of steel and the interior of brick.

It would have been possible, of course, to have exploded sufficient dynamite at the base to have brought down the stack in short order, but such a method of procedure is always attended with uncertainty and therefore more or less danger to the workmen. As experts handled the operation comparatively little dynamite was used and at the same time the stack was upset exactly in the direction desired.

The first step was to remove the nuts from the bolts holding the steel base to the concrete foundation. Some nuts could be unscrewed. Others had to be cut off with chisels. Here and there a bolt could not be reached with tools, and in such cases it would be dislodged by exploding a small piece of dynamite. When these numerous bolts had been detached a heavy wire cable was fastened half way up the stack, the other end reaching to the drums of the hoisting engine. When all was in readiness the engine was started, first very slowly as the wire cable straightened out under the terrific strain. For a few seconds the stack seemed to resist the pull of the cable. Then one imagined that the stack quivered from the top to a point probably half way to the base. To those were observing closely the stack could be seen begin to move. As it gradually gathered momentum the stack started to swing outward at the top, moving in a graceful sweep until the structure was at an angle of about 33 degrees from its original position.

It seems to be the case with all tall structures in falling to start at full length and then suddenly "buckle" and crash down in a heap. So it was with the stack. As if the two ends could not keep pace with each other the stack "buckled" in the middle and then dropped to the ground, a crumpled mass of steel and brick. It was a rare spectacle for those who happened to be present. The stack at the old Nittany Iron Co. plant will be "thrown" in the near future. It is about 173 feet high.

Tri-County Suffrage Meeting.

The Suffrage Rally at Cherry Tree, August 27th, participated in by Indiana, Cambria and Clearfield counties, was considered a great success. The prize for the best decorated automobile in the parade was awarded to the car decorated by Mrs. E. P. Irvin, of Bellefonte, and second prize to the one decorated by Mrs. Boyd Kimport, of Cherry Tree.

WOMEN SIGN UP MEN TO VOTE FOR SUFFRAGE

Have Town Blocked Off by Streets for Canvassing.

RESULTS ENCOURAGING

Very Small Percentage of Men Have Refused to Pledge Support in November—Canvassers Expect to See Every Voter in County.

A number of Bellefonte women are down to hard work in a house-to-house canvass for votes for suffrage. What's more, they are accomplishing results in lining up the men for the cause. The canvass is being conducted along systematic lines. Groups of canvassers have been alloted certain streets. Each canvasser is assigned to personally call upon a fixed number of men whose names are written on a list. In this manner it is hoped to have every voter in Bellefonte visited personally before he goes to the polls in November.

When a canvasser approaches a "prospect" she is prepared to meet almost any kind of an argument he may offer for side-stepping a request to sign a yellow slip on which is printed the following:

"I believe in woman suffrage and I intend to vote for the Amendment November 2d."

And don't think the suffragist canvassers are not well fortified with arguments. They are ready at any minute to argue so earnestly that some men become rather ashamed that the women were not given the privilege of voting long ago. Lots of men, when approached by canvassers, have replied that they never gave the matter much thought one way or the other, and then they invariably remarked that they supposed they might just as well sign a yellow slip as not. One canvasser reported that of seven men upon whom she called in one day six signed the yellow slips.

The canvassers are working under the direction of Miss Mary M. Blanchard, borough chairman. They include Mrs. D. I. Willard, Mrs. Lewis Daggett, Mrs. Canfield, Miss Mary Meek, Miss Daisy Keichline, Miss Lillie Smith, Mrs. Charles Keichline, Mrs. J. E. Ward, Mrs. Whiting, Mrs. John D. Miller, Mrs. Helen Shugert, Mrs. J. Thomas Mitchell and Mrs. John Porter Lyon.

Information Desired.

1st. Judge Orvis by a letter that was referred to by THE REPUBLICAN denies "that either now or at any time previous, have I had any interest, direct or in direct, in any brewery, distillery" &c.

Does he also deny being the beneficiary of any revenue, income, share or profits from the sales by licensed or unlicensed dealers of the products of breweries "either now or at any time previous?"

2nd. Is not Judge Orvis receiving at present time the united support of the hotel men of our County and are not the hotel men putting up the money for his campaign expenses?

3rd. Can Judge Orvis explain to the people of Centre County the cause, if any, why he has invariably considered the petitioners for a license stronger and of a higher character than the remonstrants?

4th. Is it true that Orvis or his workers are endeavoring to complicate campaign issues by stirring up friction in Religious matters?

Is it not true that Orvis said in his last campaign that one term was enough for a Judge, and, that if elected, he would not ask for a second term?

CHARGED WITH THEFT

Two Howard Men in Jail Accused of Stealing Automobile Tires.

Sumner J. Rider and William C. Leathers, Jr., both of Howard, were arrested last Saturday and lodged in jail here charged with larceny. It is alleged that they stole a number of automobile tires owned by Dr. W. J. Kurtz and William H. Thompson, of Howard. The theft was committed on June 24th, last. The tires stolen from Dr. Kurtz were removed from the rear of his machine. The Thompson tires were taken from his livery.

It is alleged that after the tires were stolen they were sold by Rider for something like $48. Leathers, it is said, did not receive one-half of the proceeds, as had been promised him, and as a result of dissatisfaction over the division information leaked out that led to the arrests.

Last Saturday two members of the State police went to Howard and made the arrests. Rider, so it is said, declared that he would not submit to arrest. Both men were taken into custody and after being handcuffed were brought to Bellefonte and marched to jail. Leathers is married.

He Meant it all Right.

Just keep in mind the fact that one of the principals in this story was a little boy of about 9 years. We'll call him Johnny Jones, which wasn't his name at all. He was with his aunt Mary, and her name didn't happen to be Mary, either. They were at a Sunday school picnic at Hecla Park a few weeks ago. A number of other boys also were there. Their mothers or aunts had taken along extra trousers for the boys so the latter might go in wading and have all the fun possible. Little Johnny Jones was not so fortunate. His aunt Mary had overlooked taking along for him an extra pair of his trousers. Johnny suddenly realized this handicap when he saw the other little boys having the time of their lives in the lake. In dismay he started out to find his aunt Mary. After a time he discovered that she was in the dancing pavilion with a number of other ladies and also some gentlemen. Walking into the midst of the group of grown-ups, Johnny Jones called out:

"Aunt Mary, did you bring along an extra pair of pants?"

And Johnny has never quite figured it out why his aunt Mary became red with confusion while the others in the pavilion fairly exploded with laughter.

$50 REBATE CHECKS FOR FORD CAR OWNERS

Purchasers of Machines in Last Year Share Profits.

48 IN BELLEFONTE

Several Receive Checks and Others Expect Them in Near Future—Ford Company Pays Out $15,000,000 to 300,000 Purchasers.

Forty-eight persons in and nearby Bellefonte who have purchased Ford automobiles in the last year will in the next few days each receive a check for $50. In fact, some already have received the checks, which are known as profit sharing checks and which are mailed direct from the Ford Company, at Detroit.

The Keichline Garage, in Bellefonte, sold 48 Ford cars from August 1, 1914, to August 1, 1915. The Ford Company announced that if the total number of cars sold during that period came up to 300,000 each purchaser would receive a profit-sharing check, or rebate, of $50. This week the checks began arriving in this section. Dr. S. M. Nissley, the local veterinarian, received a $50 check. Mr. O'Bryan, at Axe Mann, also received one. Others will likely receive their checks in the near future.

The Ford Company had prepared a special check for the purpose, there being 300,000 all told and representing $15,000,000. On each check is printed a picture of a part of the Ford plant. Over this the name of the recipient is written. The words "Fifty Dollars" are also printed on the checks. The task of securing the name and address of each Ford car purchaser, together with the printing of the checks, etc., involved an immense amount of labor and expense.

TO TEMPERANCE FORCES

Open Letter From W. C. T. U. Calling Meeting Here Tuesday, Sept. 7.

Bellefonte, Sept. 1.

DEAR Friends of the Temperance Cause:

As the organization responsible for Mr. Bennetts presence in the County and following up the work done by him in the organization of local temperance committees in the various places which he has visited with looking towards a permanent County Temperance League we hereby call for the officers chosen in these centers so far as possible to be present at a County gathering at Petrikin Hall in Bellefonte on next Tuesday afternoon, September 7th, at two o'clock.

It is hoped that the officers will secure the announcement of this meeting in the respective churches in their neighborhoods, and will urge upon the pastors and all the friends of the Temperance Cause so far as possible to be present on this occasion. In localities which have not been visited by Mr. Bennetts we ask the pastors to annonnce the meeting and secure the attendance of some at least of the friends of our cause.

The local branches of the W. C. T. U. throughout the County are urged to cooperate in making the meeting a great success.

We trust the meeting will be largely attended and be thoroughly representative of all parts of our County. This meeting will be asked to choose a name, to adopt a constitution and to elect officers for the County for the ensuing year, and to transact such other business as may properly come before it for consideration.

Seeking your heartiest cooperation, and urging the importance of your presence,

Yours very truly.
THE CENTRE CO. W. C. T. U.
Rebecca N. Rhoads, President.

A Pumpkin, Sure.

A good story has drifted this way from Millheim where a political meeting was held one night last week. It is related that a candidate for Judge, in his address undertook to impress on the farmers present that he had been raised on a farm and therefore had some claim on the farmer vote. Another candidate for Judge, when called upon, emphasized the point that his family for years back had engaged in farming. Referring to his opponent's claim to having been raised on a farm, he said that it reminded him of another fellow who claimed that he had grown up between two rows of corn

"Now", remarked the second candidate for Judge, "everybody here knows what grows between two rows of corn."

"A pumpkin, sure", yelled out a farmer from the rear of the hall, while the audience roared its appreciation of the joke.

GRANGE ENCAMPMENT

New Exhibition Buildings Have Been Erected and New Tents Purchased.

One week from Saturday the great Encampment and Grange Fair will open for a week of recreation for the farmers of Centre county and their friends.

A number of workmen have been on the grounds for several weeks preparing the camp for the comfort of visitors. A large exhibition stable has been erected which is absolutely free to exhibitors. Farmers should bring their fine horses and cattle. This department promises to be the largest and finest of its kind we have had in many years. Several other small buildings have been erected for the convenience of campers and day visitors.

The large poultry building has been repaired and is in fine shape for this exhibit. There are a large number of coops and it is hoped the poultry raisers will fill them to over-flowing. This exhibition provides one of the best opportunities in the county for advertising and selling fine poultry. A small premium is paid in this department. You can't afford to miss this chance of showing your fine birds.

The exhibit of agricultural and horticultural products will be the largest in the history of the Grange Fair. Every farmer and every gardner should place something on exhibition and help make this farmers, exhibition the largest and best in years. If each one will bring only a few articles, there will be a display that will excell any exhibit in central Pennsylvania. In the household department, women are urged to bring their handwork of all kinds, as well as the relics they are proud of. Let others see the beautiful and curious things you have stored away. Small premiums are paid in all these departments.

New tents have been bought and the Encampment will be larger than ever. Every effort will be made to make the camp pleasant and comfortable. Campers are indicating a desire to be on the ground early and tents will be ready for occupancy at least three days in advance. A large number are providing their own tents, which if shipped to the committee, will be put up ready for the parties when they arrive. You can't afford to miss this pleasant and social gathering. The ground will be in excellent condition and the entertainments the best ever given. New amusements have been contracted for, and there will be something to please everybody.

LEONARD RHONE, Chairman.

Indigestion.

There is no accounting for the trouble that dyspeptics have caused in this world, says State Health Commissioner Dixon. Every school boy can quote you, "yon' Cassius hath a lean and hungry look", and this type has stalked through history and fiction, threatening the peace of individuals and nations.

It is not surprising that the person who suffers from dyspepsia should take a pessimistic view of life. One of the chief functions of the body, digestion, is amiss and three times a day the sufferer is apt to be reminded of the fact.

The manifestations of digestive disturbances differ materially. Often enough they are not recognized as such, in fact in many cases the symptoms show themselves elsewhere than in the digestive organs. It may result in headache, defective sight, heartburn, dizziness or similar ways which continually recur or vary from time to time.

In the earlier stages indigestion may only discover itself as a general feeling of discomfort. The causes are numerous hasty eating, the indulgence in ill chosen foods, iced drinks, eating when exhausted, or some functional disorder of one of the digestive organs.

Care as to the diet, sufficient time for meals, regularity in eating and care about overloading the stomach when tired, are things which should be observed by those who would avoid indigestion.

The causes of indigestion are numerous and sometimes so serious that the best medical skill should be called in to determine the source. The use of home remedies and patent medicines if depended upon, may consume valuable time that should have been devoted to more radical treatment.

Opinion on Dog Law.

The act of 1915, which makes it unlawful for unnaturalized citizens to own dogs, is not to be used as a club to mulct fines from foreigners whose children own dogs as pets where there is no likelihood of the animals killing game, according to an opinion given recently at Harrisburg by Deputy Attorney General Davis, at the request of the state game commission, which says:

"This act was not intended to authorize a constable or other officers to go into a foreigner's home and take a lap dog or a child's pet puppy and arrest the owner of the house. The utmost good sense, as well as fairness and honesty, are essential in the enforcement of this act. Game wardens and other officers of this state should be cautioned that this act must not be used as a means of oppression or senseless prosecution, but that it should be enforced in all cases, where it is really intended to apply, and in these only."

PRAISED HIS BRAVERY

Brakeman Duey Commended for Rescue of Child at Clarence.

Several weeks ago "The Republican" published an account of the heroism of Harry E. Duey, of Tyrone, a Pennsylvania Railroad brakeman on the Snow Shoe branch, in dragging a child from the tracks and thereby saving it from being crushed to death underneath a rapidly moving locomotive. A few days ago the Pennsylvania Railroad, issued a bulletin publicly commending Duey for his brave act. A Tyrone despatch to Philadelphia and Pittsburgh newspapers on Sunday telling of this was as follows:

The Pennsylvania Railroad Company, in its latest information bulletin, publicly commends Harry E. Duey, of this place, a brakeman on the Tyrone division of the road, "for his brave act" in snatching a little boy from death in front of an engine.

Under the heading, "One of the Heroes of Peace," the company tells of the incident as follows: "A train of loaded cars was coming down the Snowshoe branch at the Tyrone division from the coal mines of Center county, Pa. As the train rounded a curve on a sharply descending grade near Clarence, a boy of 3 or 4 years was seen sitting on the track only about 200 feet ahead. A string of empty cars on a siding had hidden him from earlier view. The engineman threw on the brakes, exclaiming, as he did so, that the rails were wet and that he didn't believe he could stop in time.

Brakeman Duey was on duty at the front of the train and was in the engine cab on the fireman's side. He saw at once that there was only one chance to save the child's life, and that was at the great risk of his own. Without an instant's hesitation he dashed along the running board and gained the pilot just in time to lift the boy clear of the wheels and danger. The child was found to be the son of a coal miner at Clarence.

Mr. Duey, who is 27 years old, was born at Sunbury, Pa. He has been in the service five years, and is the son of a former Pennsylvania Railroad man. He is active in the Y. M. C. A. and in athletics.

A STARTLING NOVEL

"The Pirates of the Sky" to Be Published in Pittsburg Dispatch.

The most thrilling and momentous novel written since Rider Haggard's "King Solomon's Mines," is "The Pirates of the Sky," a speculative tale of fiction by Stephen Gaillard, who writes of the possibilities of aircraft in brigandage. With a well-worked-out plot the author has shown what might ensue if outlaws were to gain control of the largest and swiftest aeroplanes known to the world. The story tells of raids on the principal American cities, where with bombs and gunnery the inhabitants were terrorized and then the banks looted, etc. Millionaires and women are kidnaped and carried off to an inaccessible valley in South America. The band of cultured outlaws has sworn to overturn all governments. The chief is a Russian Nihilist. Dissensions and intrigue enter the oath-bound society, and its disintegration has already begun when an Indiana aviator and a Chicago newspaper reporter find the lair and with the help of earthquakes and volcanic eruptions clear the world of its greatest enemy. A pretty love story runs through an all-absorbing plot. "The Pirates of the Sky" will begin serial publication in The Pittsburg Dispatch, Monday, September 6, 1915. You must read it. Order the paper today. Consult your newsdealer or write The Pittsburg Dispatch, Pittsburg, Pa.

Mutt and Jeff Cutting Up Again.

"What did Mutt and Jeff do today?" is again the daily question; it is quite as common as "What is new in the war?" And a good laugh always goes with Mutt and Jeff.

These greatest fun makers are again cutting up their comical capers in The Pittsburgh Gazette Times. They are a scream, of course, for there never was another so comical a comic as "Bud" Fisher makes of these creatures of his brain and pen. Mutt and Jeff are human, they are irresistible in their appeal. In The Gazette Times they are another big feature added to the big things that characterize Pittsburgh's One Big Newspaper. "Bud" Fisher's Mutt and Jeff humor is always fresh. You never have to hunt for the laugh. You are never shocked. Mutt and Jeff are the One Big Daily Comic. That's why they are in the Pittsburgh Gazette Times.

MEN WHO GO UP IN AIR TO FIGHT ARE REAL HEROES OF THIS WAR

Paris.—Pont-a-Mousson on the Moselle river has been bombarded by the Germans two hundred and twenty times since last September and yet Pont-a-Mousson is still on the map. This little French village is under almost constant bombardment, not because of any particular desire perhaps of the foe to destroy it ruthlessly but probably because the wish is to prevent the French from assembling large forces of troops within its limits, and also to keep them from placing batteries at a notably valuable strategic point.

Thousands of shells have fallen into this Moselle river village and almost every day they continue to rain down. There is a curious thing to be noticed in Pont-a-Mousson. Only one part of the village is destroyed, for nearly all the shells have fallen within a limited area. A good many civilians, old men, women and children have been killed in the streets of the village, but the loss of life has been due largely to the neglect of some of the villagers to take refuge at the first warning in their bomb-proof cellars. Why the Germans have concentrated fire on one section of Pont-a-Mousson it is hard to determine, but the fact that the major part of the village has escaped destruction leads one to comment on the escape of many another target at which shell fire has been directed.

Two Astounding Facts.

Two of the most astounding facts which came to my notice on the battle lines of France are these: That it is almost impossible for the artillerymen of any country to bring down an aeroplane, and in that it is almost equally impossible for an aviator to drop a bomb successfully on the target which he has selected for destruction.

Why is it that the batteries can't hit their flying mark, and why is it that the man on the flying mark can't hit the batteries or anything else that he aims at? These questions must be left probably for answer to the scientists, whether they be in the army or in civil life.

Now it must not be understood that the batteries never hit anything, or that the aviators never hit anything. Sometimes they accomplish their objects of death or destruction or both, but much more frequently they fail. Readers of the papers learn only of the successful attacks.

Much Wasted Effort.

Before this I have told about seeing a French battery doing its level best to bring down a German taube which was bent on flying over the city of Nancy for the purpose of dropping bombs on the houses and the people. The German machine made its way through a perfect storm of shrapnel and did it unscathed. It finally was driven back, but it was uninjured. Shells broke all about and scattered the shrapnel bullets like hail. But the operator went serenely on his way with the machine until the fusillade became too hot even for him, and he was forced to turn back toward the German line where he landed safely. Stories like this could be multiplied indefinitely.

On another occasion at the actual front a German aeroplane came over the French line not far from the Bois-le-Pretre or in English, the Wood of the Priest, one of the most hotly-contested fields along the entire western battle front. The German intruder was fired at by every gun, large and small, which the French could bring to bear. Seemingly the day of miracles is not over, for this aeroplane escaped without harm. Like the other it was compelled to turn about and to make its way back into the German lines, but the French counted it a very small victory simply to force the retreat of the air foeman.

Fooled by Biplane.

In Paris one day a biplane appeared over the city. Every German air visitor for months had come in the form of a monoplane and so when the biplane appeared the French in one aviation camp thought that the visitor was a machine from a camp of their countrymen, for the French largely use biplanes. The machine displayed the French colors and this fact helped it unimpeded on its way.

The visitor sailed around over the Garden of the Tuileries, the Place de la Concorde and the Quai d' Orsay for nearly an hour. Later I was particularly interested in the movements of this biplane because my wife all unconscious of danger, had been sitting in the Tuileries garden for more than half an hour while the machine circled above her head. Finally she started back to her hotel and had just reached it when the supposed French biplane dropped eight bombs, one after another, in fairly rapid succession.

The Eiffel Tower rears its head one thousand feet above the plane of Paris. It is used as a wireless telegraph station and on the platform at its top are mounted several antiaircraft guns. The German biplane which was disguised as a Frenchman was attempting to "take the life" of the Eiffel tower. The eight bombs which the German let fall were aimed at the tower, but the bomb nearest to the mark fell nearly half a mile away from it.

One of the Marvels.

The poor success which aviators have in hitting the things they aim at is one of the marvels of the present warfare.

Not long ago there was an account of an attack made through the air on a German depot at Bruges, Belgium. French and English aviators in considerable numbers flew over the place and succeeded in dropping bombs into a shipyard and on a freight depot and in doing considerable damage to both. This exploit was hailed as a great triumph of marksmanship. Nothing was said about the fact that before the successful raid, ten attempts had been made by many aviators acting together to hit the same mark and all had failed. To hit a thing once in ten times is not considered a particularly high average of marksmanship on land or sea, but it seems that the man who can "ring the bell" once in ten times from the air is considered a sharpshooter.

I don't want to get away from this marksmanship subject until I tell the story of something which happened in an English coast town which I visited but whose name I am not permitted to disclose. Some weeks ago the English authorities published the names of the towns and villages which had suffered from German aeroplane or Zeppelin attacks, but recently they have suppressed the names of the towns which have received the baptism of fire from above.

Shock Cures Paralysis.

I went into one English village which had been visited the night before by a Zeppelin. Bombs had been dropped haphazard because it was impossible to pick out a mark in the inky blackness of the night. One bomb fell on a hospital in which there were about one hundred wounded English soldiers. Not one of them was hurt, but all of them except the legless ones made a hurried escape from the wrecked building, wounded and sick though they were. One soldier who had disappeared was searched for hurriedly by the nurses. He was found half a mile up the road. This man had been taken to the hospital completely paralyzed from the waist down. He had been unable to move either leg and yet under the shock of the explosion and the resulting excitement he found the use of his legs and made a good half mile before he fell down exhausted.

At the front in France the noise of the cannonading is almost continuous. The big guns roar away all through the days and sometimes through the nights when not a small rifle is being fired, and no charges of infantry are being made. Of course, the cannon have an objective for their shots, usually some battery of the enemy or some wood in which large forces of men are supposed to be assembled. Occasionally a battery is put out of commission by a dropping shell and also occasionally a score or so of men will be blown to fragments by the explosion of a huge projectile falling in their midst, but nevertheless fully 95 per cent of the shots miss the mark.

Are Not Really Wasted.

Is it any wonder that the ammunition bill is big and that results do not measure up to it? It must be remembered, however, that the constant dropping of shells keeps the morale of the foemen down and that when it is said that the shots are wasted the words do not express the full truth.

One of the most interesting things which I saw on the battle front in France, was the attempt of a French battery to "bring down" a captive balloon which the Germans had sent up from their lines for observation purposes. The two Germans in the basket of that balloon must have been men of magnificent nerve. The range was not a long one and the first French shells burst at some distance from the balloon. Gradually, however, the shots began getting nearer and nearer to the mark, but the balloonists with their lives in their hands went on taking their observation amid a rain of projectiles until apparently the commanding officer on the ground below ordered that they should be pulled down to a place of safety.

The men who go up in the air to fight, whether they be Englishmen, Frenchmen, Belgians, Germans, Russians, Turks or Italians, are perhaps the transcending heroes of this war.

ARE YOUR KIDNEYS WELL?

Many Bellefonte People Know the Importance of Healthy Kidneys.

The kidneys filter the blood.
They work night and day.
Well kidneys remove impurities.
Weak kidneys allow impurities to multiply.
No kidney ill should be neglected.
There is possible danger in delay.
If you have backache or urinary troubles,
If you are nervous, dizzy or worn out.
Begin treating your kidneys at once;
Use a proven kidney remedy.

Change in Rural Routes.

The Beech Creek correspondence in the Lock Haven "Express" last Saturday included the following:—The postoffice department has shaken up the rural routes in Bald Eagle valley and as a result the route from the Beech Creek office covered so efficiently by Morton C. DeHass has been slightly shortened by cutting off the lower portion, and instead of going past the J. G. Packer farm and via Plunkett's run, the carrier will turn north from the main highway via Laurel run, which is at the J. B. Rosser farm, to Floral, abbreviating the total distance of the local route some two miles, which has been added to the Mill Hall route except the residents between the Rosser and Packer farms who are compelled to go some distance to their boxes. This change is effective September 1, and residents in the territory described should govern their mail matter accordingly.

My Fairy Godmother

She Gave Me Three Riddles.

By F. A. MITCHEL

Having tried various ways of spending the month I put aside each year for an outing, and tired of them all, I was casting about for some new method when I saw an advertisement of a cabin situated on an island on the coast of Maine. The price was so reasonable that it attracted my attention. I entered into correspondence with the owner and engaged it.

My reason for doing so was that I met so many people at home that I desired to go where I would see no one. All day long I was hounded by persons eager to get a word with me to sell me something, and in the evening I was engaged in various social matters. A cabin hidden in a wood with a view of the ocean appealed to me. To lie at night listening to the breakers on the beach was a pleasing fancy.

I found the location what I had dreamed it. The cabin was well enough, but the furnishings were execrable. A cheap bedstead, a rickety bureau, a table on which to eat, a cook stove and a lot of cheap dishes completed the furnishings. There was no other abode near me, but scattered about were summer cottages, some of which were fairly pretentious. I saw no reason why I should be troubled by the inmates of any of them so long as I let them alone, which I proposed to do.

I had spent a week with only myself for company when one day, after a long tramp, on returning to my cabin I stood on the threshold astonished at a transformation of the interior. Disorder had been accumulating ever since my arrival; the bed had never been made; the dishes had not been washed. There were enough of the latter to last one person a week without being used more than once, and I had about finished the lot. I found on my return the bed made, the dishes washed, the cooking utensils scoured and hanging spick and span on the shelves.

I felt myself to be the hero of a fairy story and almost expected to see a little old woman drop down the chimney and stand upon the hearth.

Several days passed, during which disorder was again looming up about me, when, after an absence, I returned to find all set to rights, as before. Still not finding any clew, I wrote on a piece of cardboard a message and pinned it up against the wall for my next absence:

Fairy Godmother—Thank you very much for your attention. I need only one thing. Will you give it to me? If so, leave word when next you come and I will make it known.

I went away again very soon, and when I returned beneath what I had written were penciled in letters apparently in the hand of an old person the following:

Your single wish is granted; name it.

Before going away again I wrote:

Some one to love—me.

The answer to this was:

Love is not singular; it is plural.

I found on the rude mantel of my cabin a skein of fine thread, tangled, and pinned to it the words:

Unravel this and you shall have your wish.

This fairy business was not gratifying my curiosity. I spent no time trying to unravel the thread, but spent considerable thought in laying a plan to find out who was my fairy godmother. I did not doubt that it was some girl from one of the cottages—possibly several girls who were deriving a lot of amusement in playing fairy. The only plan I could think of was to go away early in the day and hide near by. This I did. There was a dense thicket a short distance from my cabin, and one morning, having breakfasted at 5 o'clock, taking a book, pipe and tobacco and a lunch, I went into the thicket prepared to wait and watch.

About 11 o'clock in the morning I heard a child's voice calling, "He's gone!" I peeped through an opening and saw a girl about ten years old near the cabin beckoning to some one I could not see. Presently I saw a girl of perhaps twenty concealed from the hut by a tree, but visible to me, evidently fearful of advancing. But the child ran into the cabin and out again, beckoned eagerly, and the young woman timidly left her hiding place and went into the cabin.

Now I did not propose to give away the advantage I held by cornering my fairy godmother. I waited till she had left the cabin, then stole cautiously after her, my object being to locate her home. I followed her and her companion for two miles and saw her go into a cottage situated on a bluff overlooking the ocean. Then I returned to my habitation to see what was her last message.

I had left the tangled skein on the table and near it a sheet of writing paper on which I had sprinkled drops of water and written "Tears" and below:

Fairy Godmother—I am wearing myself out trying to unravel the skein. Give me something easier.

A reply to this had been written on the "tear" bespattered paper:

Idle tears. Square the circle and you shall have your wish.

It was evident that the young lady had no intention of giving me a sweetheart. Anyway I knew enough not to tackle an insoluble problem. I chuckled, for I had her secret and she did not have mine. Lighting a pipe in order to sharpen my inventive faculties, I set to work to think out my next move. I did not spend much time on deciding upon one.

The next evening just before dark I was passing the cottage where dwelt my fairy godmother. The little girl who had aided her in her visits to my cabin was playing in the yard. Seating myself by the gate, I called to the child. She came, and I asked her if she could get me some arnica. She ran to the house and returned with an elderly lady, who asked if I had been injured.

"Only a sprained ankle from slipping off a smooth stone," I said. "A little arnica will fix it. Indeed, I don't know that anything is needed." I arose, with pretended difficulty, took one step and sank down again.

"I will call help," said the lady. "You must be carried to the house."

"No, no," I protested. "I'm sure I can walk that far if you will kindly allow me to put a hand on your arm."

The lady consented. With her assistance I got to the house and was placed in an easy chair on the porch. The fairy godmother came out, but I pretended not to notice her. She started on seeing me, and I saw color come and go in her face. I made a grimace in pretense of suffering, and her expression of uneasiness at my presence gave way to one of sympathy. I carefully concealed any recognition of her, and she was soon ministering to me with the others.

"I fear," I said, "that if you have a vehicle on the premises I shall have to ask some one to drive me to my cabin. It is a couple of miles from here on the eastern end of the island."

Now, I was quite sure there was no vehicle on the premises, for there was neither barn nor garage. The elder lady informed me that there was no means of conveyance at hand, and since it was growing dark, I would be welcome to remain till one could be found. I pretended to demur to this, but was overruled. My "sprained" ankle was propped up on a foot rest with pillows. I remembered to wince occasionally, fearful that my benefactors might suspect the part I was playing.

Soon after I had got settled my fairy godmother brought me out a dainty supper which she placed on a stand beside me. I felt quite confident that she knew me for the person whose cabin she had visited in my absence, but I was equally sure that she believed me to be ignorant that she was the person she had favored. In order to convince her of this I told her about my cabin and how I was spending an outing there alone. She made no comment, seemingly preferring to chat on other subjects.

I spent a pleasant evening, not mentioning that I had received kindness from an unknown person, nor did my fairy godmother give any hint that she had even ever seen or heard of me before. No conveyance was forthcoming, and I was urged to abandon any idea of going to my cabin till morning, when it was suggested I might ride over with a farmer who supplied the family with milk each morning. After trying to step with the injured ankle and demonstrating that I could not possibly use it without great agony, I yielded to persuasion and consented to remain the night.

By this time a stout cane had been provided for me, and I insisted on hobbling to my room without other assistance. In the morning I came downstairs, still keeping up the hobbling, and about 10 o'clock the farmer came with the milk. I expressed my heartfelt thanks to my benefactors and hired him to drive me to my cabin. My fairy godmother was solicitous lest I would need attention and be without it, living alone as I did, but I assured her that I would be back soon to thank her and the others again for the kindness that had been bestowed upon me. Then the farmer lifted me into his wagon and I was driven away, followed by smiling goodbys from all the family.

The next day, since I did not expect another visit from my fairy godmother and not wishing to spend the day lounging about my cabin, I went out for some deep sea fishing. As usual I left everything in disorder. On my return shortly before dark I met with a surprise. My household had been put to rights and the paper on which I corresponded with my fairy godmother bore a message:

Since you have done neither of the tasks given you by your fairy godmother you cannot have any one to love you. You shall have one more opportunity. Tell how a sprained ankle can be made well within twelve hours.

I was dumfounded. Never had I so prided myself on playing a part as palming myself off as a sufferer. Talk about men being deceivers of women! I doubt if any man ever did any such thing. The girl had seen through my ruse and had played me a far better game than I had played her, or, rather, I had tried to play her.

Well, the fairy godmother business was ended. There was nothing for me to do but go to her abode and confess myself beaten. This I did the next morning. I longed for an offering to take with me, but in that wilderness no such thing was to be had. I was received with a look of amusement mingled with triumph. My first words were, "How did you discover my game?" The reply was: "Don't ask a woman how she discovers things. She either knows them by intuition or not at all."

Notwithstanding that I did not solve any of the riddles, I got some one to love and to love me.

ERIE CONVENTION SUNDAY SCHOOLS

To Take Moving Pictures For World's Convention at Tokyo.

This Annual Meeting Will Draw Thousands of Workers—October 5, 6, 7, 8, the Dates.

"Pennsylvania's greatest asset is not her mineral wealth, nor her timber lands, nor even her farm products, but her boys and girls." This statement surely challenges attention. Let the boys and girls of the Commonwealth be reared into strong manhood and womanhood and no one need worry about the rating of the old Keystone State.

The Sunday School forces of the State, to meet in annual Convention at Erie, October 5 to 8, inclusive, will plan to strengthen the elementary foundation for religious instruction in all the Protestant Evangelical Sunday Schools.

Specialists in the Cradle Roll, Beginners, Primary and Junior Departments will assist Mrs. M. J. Baldwin, Elementary Superintendent of the State Association, in presenting methods to meet the spiritual needs of each stage of the pupils' development. Methods of ingathering to increase the enrollment, as well as methods to increase the average attendance will be considered.

Pennsylvania has one million and a quarter of older teen age young men and women. A campaign will be inaugurated at Erie to reach a larger number of these for the Christian life.

The Convention program provides a conference for older boys and a separate conference for older girls. A call has been sent out for five hundred of both sexes to attend the convention, with the view of challenging their attention for leadership in the Sunday School. The State Association has recently employed Mr. Preston G. Orwig, who has made a study of older boy and girl life, to direct the work among this splendid army of young people in the Sunday School.

It is proposed to take moving pictures of the Erie Convention for the purpose of exhibiting the same at the next World's Sunday School Convention, to be held in Tokyo, Japan, in October, 1916.

Pennsylvania is recognized as having the most complete State Sunday School organization on the North American continent. Every one of the sixty-seven counties has a thorough organization and these in turn are sub-divided into over nine hundred district organizations. These organizations are active throughout the entire year and are responsible for more than fifteen hundred conventions and special meetings, annually, in the interest of better and more efficient Sunday Schools.

Erie is ready to receive the representatives of this great State-wide organization which devotes itself to the task of discovering the best methods that make for Sunday School improvement and to give these methods to every Sunday School, regardless of its denomination, creed and doctrine.

PROPOSED AMENDMENTS TO THE CONSTITUTION SUBMITTED TO THE CITIZENS OF THE COMMONWEALTH FOR THEIR APPROVAL OR REJECTION, BY THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY OF THE COMMONWEALTH OF PENNSYLVANIA, AND PUBLISHED BY ORDER OF THE SECRETARY OF THE COMMONWEALTH, IN PURSUANCE OF ARTICLE XVIII OF THE CONSTITUTION.

Number One.

A JOINT RESOLUTION

Proposing an amendment to section one, article eight of the Constitution of Pennsylvania.

Be it resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in General Assembly met, That the following amendment to the Constitution of Pennsylvania be, and the same is hereby, proposed, in accordance with the eighteenth article thereof:—

That section one of article eight, which reads as follows:

"Section 1. Every male citizen twenty-one years of age, possessing the following qualifications, shall be entitled to vote at all elections, subject, however, to such laws requiring and regulating the registration of electors as the General Assembly may enact:

"First. He shall have been a citizen of the United States at least one month.

"Second. He shall have resided in the State one year (or, having previously been a qualified elector or native-born citizen of the State, he shall have removed therefrom and returned, then six months) immediately preceding the election.

"Third. He shall have resided in the election district where he shall offer to vote at least two months immediately preceding the election.

"Fourth. If twenty-two years of age and upwards, he shall have paid within two years a State or county tax, which shall have been assessed at least two months and paid at least one month before the election," be amended so that the same shall read as follows:

Section 1. Every citizen, male or female, of twenty-one years of age, possessing the following qualifications, shall be entitled to vote at all elections, subject, however, to such laws requiring and regulating the registration of electors as the General Assembly may enact:

First. He or she shall have been a citizen of the United States at least one month.

Second. He or she shall have resided in the State one year (or, having previously been a qualified elector or native-born citizen of the State, he or she shall have removed therefrom and returned, then six months) immediately preceding the election.

Third. He or she shall have resided in the election district where he or she shall offer to vote at least two months immediately preceding the election.

Fourth. If twenty-two years of age and upwards, he or she shall have paid within two years a State or county tax, which shall have been assessed at least two months and paid at least one month before the election.

Fifth. Wherever the words "he," "his," "him," and "himself" occur in any section of article VIII of this Constitution the same shall be construed as if written, respectively, "he or she," "his or her," "him or her," and "himself or herself."

Number Two.

A JOINT RESOLUTION

Proposing an amendment to section eight of article nine of the Constitution of Pennsylvania.

Section 1. Be it resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in General Assembly met, That the following is proposed as an amendment to the Constitution of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, in accordance with the provisions of the eighteenth article thereof:—

Amend section eight, article nine of the Constitution of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, which reads as follows:

"Section 8. The debt of any county, city, borough, township, school district, or other municipality or incorporated district, except as herein provided, shall never exceed seven per centum upon the assessed value of the taxable property therein, nor shall any such municipality or district incur any new debt, or increase its indebtedness to an amount exceeding two per centum upon such assessed valuation of property, without the assent of the electors thereof at a public election in such manner as shall be provided by law; but any city, the debt of which now exceeds seven per centum of such assessed valuation, may be authorized by law to increase the same three per centum, in the aggregate, at any one time, upon such valuation, except that any debt or debts hereinafter incurred by the city and county of Philadelphia for the construction and development of subways for transit purposes, or for the construction of wharves and docks, or the reclamation of land to be used in the construction of a system of wharves and docks, as public improvements, owned or to be owned by said city and county of Philadelphia, and which shall yield to the city and county of Philadelphia current net revenues in excess of the interest on said debt or debts, and the annual installments necessary for the cancellation of said debt or debts, may be excluded in ascertaining the power of the city and county of Philadelphia to become otherwise indebted: Provided, That a sinking-fund for their cancellation shall be established and maintained," so that it shall read as follows:—

Section 8. The debt of any county, city, borough, township, school district, or other municipality or incorporated district, except as herein provided, shall never exceed seven per centum upon the assessed value of the taxable property therein, nor shall any such municipality or district incur any new debt, or increase its indebtedness to an amount exceeding two per centum upon such assessed valuation of property, without the consent of the electors thereof at a public election in such manner as shall be provided by law; but any city, the debt of which on the first day of January, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-four, exceeded seven per centum of such assessed valuation, and has not since been reduced to less than such per centum, may be authorized by law to increase the same three per centum in the aggregate, at any one time, upon such valuation. The city of Philadelphia, upon the conditions hereinafter set forth, may increase its indebtedness to the extent of three per centum in excess of seven per centum upon such assessed valuation for the specific purpose of providing for all or any of the following purposes,—to wit: For the construction and improvement of subways, tunnels, railways, elevated railways, and other transit facilities, for the construction and improvement of wharves and docks and for the reclamation of land to be used in the construction of wharves and docks, owned or to be owned by said city. Such increase, however, shall only be made with the assent of the electors thereof at a public election, to be held in such manner as shall be provided by law. In ascertaining the borrowing capacity of said city of Philadelphia, at any time, there shall be excluded from the calculation a credit, where the work resulting from any previous expenditure, for any one or more of the specific purposes hereinabove enumerated shall be yielding to said city an annual current net revenue; the amount of which credit shall be ascertained by capitalizing the annual net revenue during the year immediately preceding the time of such ascertainment. Such capitalization shall be accomplished by ascertaining the principal amount which would yield such annual, current net revenue, at the average rate of interest, and sinking-fund charges payable upon the indebtedness incurred by said city for such purposes, up to the time of such ascertainment. The method of determining such amount, so to be excluded or allowed as a credit, may be prescribed by the General Assembly.

In incurring indebtedness, for any one, or more of said purposes of construction, improvement, or reclamation, the city of Philadelphia may issue its obligations maturing not later than fifty years from the date thereof, with provision for a sinking-fund sufficient to retire said obligation at maturity, the payments to such sinking-fund to be in equal or graded annual instalments. Such obligations may be in an amount sufficient to provide for and may include the amount of the interest and sinking-fund charges accruing and which may accrue thereon throughout the period of construction and until the expiration of one year after the completion of the work for which said indebtedness shall have been incurred; and said city shall not be required to levy a tax to pay said interest and sinking-fund charges, as required by section ten of article nine of the Constitution of Pennsylvania, until the expiration of said period of one year after the completion of such work.

Number Three.

A JOINT RESOLUTION

Proposing an amendment to section twenty-one of article three of the Constitution of Pennsylvania.

Section 1. Be it resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in General Assembly met, That the following amendment to the Constitution of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania be, and the same is hereby, proposed, in accordance with the eighteenth article thereof:—

Amend section twenty-one, article three of the Constitution of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, which reads as follows:

"No act of the General Assembly shall limit the amount to be recovered for injuries resulting in death, or for injuries to persons or property, and in case of death from such injuries, the right of action shall survive, and the General Assembly shall prescribe for whose benefit such actions shall be prosecuted. No act shall prescribe any limitations of time within which suits may be brought against corporations for injuries to persons or property, or for other causes different from those fixed by general laws regulating actions against natural persons, and such acts now existing are avoided," so that it shall read as follows:

The General Assembly may enact laws requiring the payment by employers, or employers and employes jointly, of reasonable compensation for injuries to employes arising in the course of their employment, and for occupational diseases of employes, whether or not such injuries or diseases result in death, and regardless of fault of employer or employe, and fixing the basis of ascertainment of such compensation and the maximum and minimum limits thereof, and providing special or general remedies for the collection thereof; but in no other cases shall the General Assembly limit the amount to be recovered for injuries resulting in death, or for injuries to persons or property, and in case of death from such injuries, the right of action shall survive, and the General Assembly shall prescribe for whose benefit such actions shall be prosecuted. No act shall prescribe any limitations of time within which suits may be brought against corporations for injuries to persons or property, or for other causes, different from those fixed by general laws regulating actions against natural persons, and such acts now existing are avoided.

A JOINT RESOLUTION

Proposing an amendment to the Constitution of this Commonwealth in accordance with provisions of the eighteenth (XVIII) article thereof.

Section 1. Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in General Assembly met, and it is hereby enacted by the authority of the same, That the following is proposed as an amendment to the Constitution of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, in accordance with the provisions of the eighteenth (XVIII) article thereof:—

AMENDMENT.

Laws may be passed providing for a system of registering, transferring, insuring of and guaranteeing land titles by the State, or by the counties thereof, and for settling and determining adverse or other claims to and interest in lands the titles to which are so registered, transferred, insured, and guaranteed; and for the creation and collection of indemnity funds; and for carrying the system and powers hereby provided for into effect by such existing courts as may be designated by the Legislature, and by the establishment of such new courts as may be deemed necessary. In matters arising in and under the operation of such system, judicial powers, with right of appeal, may be conferred by the Legislature upon county recorders and upon other officers by it designated. Such laws may provide for continuing the registering, transferring, insuring, and guaranteeing such titles after the first or original registration has been perfected by the court, and provision may be made for raising the necessary funds for expenses and salaries of officers, which shall be paid out of the treasury of the several counties.

First Indian West Pointer.

The first Indian to receive an appointment to West Point was David Moniac, a Creek. He was born in Alabama and was a cadet of the Military academy from Sept. 18, 1817, until July 1, 1822, when he was graduated and appointed a brevet second lieutenant in the Sixth infantry. On the expiration of his graduation leave on Dec. 31, 1822, he resigned from the army to become a cotton planter in his native state. During the war in Florida in 1836 against the Seminoles, Moniac became captain in a regiment of mounted Creek volunteers and became a major in that regiment Nov. 15, 1836. He was killed six days later in the battle of Wahoo swamp.—New York Sun.

Real Chivalry.

"I want you," said the fair society leader, "to give me a plain opinion about my picture."

"Madame," said the gallant cavalier, bowing, "to speak in plain terms of that portrait would be impossible."—Baltimore American.

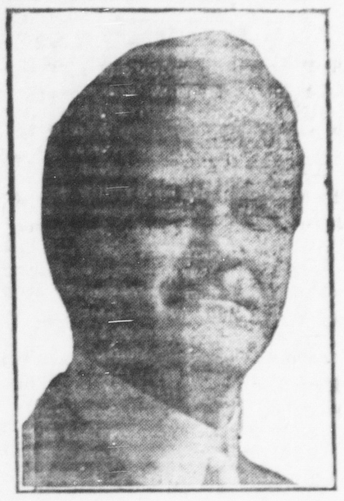
PEACE MEETING AT STATE SESSION

Hon. P. C. Knox, ex-Secretary of State, Will Speak.

Many Specialists of National and International Fame Are Booked for State Sunday School Convention.

The City by the Lake, Erie, Pennsylvania, made famous by Commodore Perry's successes of 1812, on Lake Erie, will have a great Peace Meeting in connection with the annual State Sunday School Convention, to be held in that city, October 5, 6, 7 and 8, 1915.

Erie is making elaborate preparations for this great Convention that will bring together between four and five thousand Sunday School workers from every part of the State. Every County will send its quota of delegates and all denominations will be represented.



T. Alex. Cairns, Ph.D., Newark, N. J. The funniest and most serious man on Temperance platform.

The Convention will open with a session on Tuesday evening, October 5th and close with the afternoon session of October 8th.

A great meeting in the interest of peace will be held on Wednesday evening, October 6th. Hon. P. C. Knox, Ex-Secretary of State in President Taft's Cabinet, and Dr. J. A. McDonald, Editor of the Toronto (Canada) Globe, will be the principal speakers.

The program provides for eighteen different sessions, conferences and sectional meetings, bringing together Sunday School specialists and experts of national and international reputation. The list includes the following:

Mr. W. C. Pearce, Chicago, Ill., Adult Superintendent of the International Sunday School Association.

Mrs. Mary Foster Bryner, Chicago, Ill., Elementary Superintendent of the International Sunday School Association.

Rev. E. W. Halpenny, Toronto, Canada, General Secretary of the Ontario Sunday School Association.

Mrs. Emma Gary Wallace, Auburn, N. Y., member of the International Adult Committee.

T. Alex. Cairns, Ph.D., Newark, N. J., the funniest and most serious man on the Temperance platform.

Mrs. Phoebe Curtiss, Columbus, O., Elementary and Missionary Superintendent of the Ohio State Sunday School Association.

Mrs. Mary Foster Bryner, Chicago, Ill. Elementary Superintendent, International Sunday School Association.

Miss Elizabeth Harris, Albany, N. Y., Elementary Superintendent of the New York State Sunday School Association.

Bishop Homer L. Stuntz, Missionary Bishop of the Methodist Episcopal Church for South America.

Dean Walter G. Fiske, Oberlin, O., author of numerous books on rural Sunday School and Church problems.

Miss Helen Forbes, St. Louis, Mo., Secondary division Superintendent of the Missouri State Sunday School Association.

In addition to these noted specialists from other States, there will be scores of participants on the program picked from Pennsylvania's choicest Sunday School talent.

Full particulars concerning the program can be secured by writing to the Pennsylvania State Sabbath School Association, 1511 Arch Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

You will never tire your tongue while your brains are busy.

Deal honestly with all men, but be sure to count your change.

Jail is a place where a lot of people don't go that ought to.

Love will turn the cottage into a castle but it won't pay the rent.

Most people s idea of injustice is anything they want and can't get.

The foreign sympathizers have got to quit kicking our neutrality around.

The man who inherits money, without brains, ends without brains or money.

All the money in the bank isn't worth the fuss some men make over losing a dollar.

If some men can't sneak into Heaven behind their wife's skirts they'll never get there.

Folks who sleep in church may go to Heaven—if they don't get carried past the station.

A lot of happy homes have been broken up through trying to domesticate a temperament.

There are some pious old frauds who seem to think they can get into Heaven on forged passports.

Uncle Sam couldn't have got more trouble out of this war game if he'd volunteered to umpire it.

Don't argue with a woman; if she's fond of you, you don't have to convince her, and if she isn't you can't.

When the United States gets through with Haiti and Mexico, it might turn its attention to civilizing Georgia.

The Pittsburg man who has invented a battleship that "can't be sunk" must have found a way to propel it along the bottom.

You're bound to find that trouble has been tucked away in the package with any kind of pleasure that you buy in bottles.

Americans have no objection to Germany's buying anything the Imperial Government wants in America except Americans.

They've arrested a man for spying in the United States defenses. It would interest a number of people where the man found the defenses.

Praise for the orderly retirement of the Russians as the greatest in history seems to overlook the masterly, strategic return of the Bull Moose.

Six persons have been indicted for the Eastland disaster, but anybody of a speculative turn of mind, who wishes to wager that the six will really be punished for killing a thousand people, can get big odds that they won't.

There's a tribe in Russia—you may take this from the National Geographical society—that doesn't know that the Crimean war is ended. But that's nothing. There will be Generals in England before long, if Germany goes on unmolested in Russia, who won't know that this cruel war is over.

Down in Texas where they can always turn out a mob to watch a lynching, they are now in deadly fear—if you believe what they say—of a Mexican attempt to invade the state. They cry aloud for help. But there is a hollow sound in that cry. It doesn't sound like Texas. The idea that a few bandits are going to drop Lone Star State off the American map and slip it over into the chaos that is called Mexico don't convince anybody who knows anything about the past or the present history of Texas. Whatever is back of this outcry, politics or a scheme to force intervention, it is certain that fear of a Mexican plot to annex Texas is largely Texas bluff.

ITALY AGAINST SPECULATORS.

Chicago and the West couldn't think of anything but the forcing of the Dardanelles when they first learned that 2,000,000 bushels of wheat contracted for by the Allies had been refused at a loss of 10 cents a bushel. But it wasn't the Dardanelles and it wasn't peace—which wouldn't have made any difference anyway—it was just the result of a move on the part of Italy to stop gambling in the necessaries of life. Italy, like Germany and other warring countries, refused to allow speculators to boost prices. Consequently, the firms that had contracted for the Chicago wheat dropped it quickly. Italy will get her wheat, if she can, in Argentina, where she won't have to encounter such a high rate of exchange. The only military importance attributed to this cancellation is the very practical desire of European nations not to pay any more than they have to for what they buy.

Willing to Quit When Down and Out.

General Villa says he is willing to agree to an armistice if it can be done without "loss of dignity to the national decorum." We guess he's perfectly safe so far as that goes. Whatever the national decorum of Mexico may be, it won't suffer any loss of dignity by the elimination of Villa from the firing line. But we needn't thank the President's pacific policy for Villa's change of heart toward peaceful discussion. It was Obregon's field guns that turned the trick.

Tuesday marked the close of the entries for nominations for county offices. Until the primaries on September 21st it may be expected that the numerous candidates will vigorously press their claims on the voters. The more activity we have the merrier will be the campaign. A word of friendly suggestion to the several Republican aspirants may be in order. Let each one put up the very best fight possible for honors. Make the campaign a hummer, and when the primaries are over let every man stand squarely by the Republican county ticket, regardless of who may happen to be the nominees. All cannot be nominated, but all can and should enter the final weeks of the preliminary campaign determined to stand by the decision of the Republican voters of the county.

Russia has started an inquiry to see who is responsible for the shortage of munitions. England has already had one cabinet upheaval over the same question, and may have another. There is nothing in this for Americans to scoff at. We not only have no munitions worth considering in case we were dragged into a real war, we haven't even an army. The chief military difference to-day between China and the United States is that China can't prepare for possible trouble, while America won't.

John Richards Dead.

John Richards, a well known veterinary surgeon and veteran of the Civil war, died last Sunday afternoon at his home in Eldorado, following an illness of ten days of a complication of diseases. His illness was not apparently of a serious character, but just before he passed away he complained of not feeling so well and in a few moments he expired. Mr. Richards was born in Clearfield county April 19, 1836, and had been a resident of that community for thirty-eight years. He was married to Elizabeth Spangler in 1858. She died eight years ago and he is survived by one son John, of Altoona, and a daughter, Mrs. Harry Humphrey, of Philipsburg. He also leaves one brother, Emanuel, of Lloydville, fifteen grandchildren and thirteen great-grandchildren. Mr. Richards had been a veterinary surgeon all his life. During the Civil war he served in Company D. Fifty-third Pennsylvania volunteer infantry. He was a member of Post 62, Grand Army of the Republic, and of the United Brethren church.

Mrs H. J. Leathers Dead.

Mrs. Harriet Jane Leathers died at Renovo on August 20th, aged 75 years. For a number of years she resided at Howard, moving to that place from Lock Haven. She is survived by one sister, Mrs. Helen M. Luther, of Flemington; by two sons, Nathan Leathers, of Renovo and J. W. Leathers, of Flemington, also by four daughters, Mrs. Emma Gardner, of Renovo; Mrs. Minnie B. Vaughn, of Newark, N. J.; Mrs. Helen Lingle, of Johnsonburg, and Carrie Leathers, of Danville. Burial was made at Jacksonville.

Mrs. Elizabeth Austin Dead.

Mrs. Elizabeth Austin died at 6.45 o'clock Sunday evening at the home of her brother, Miles Snyder, at Tyrone from a complication of diseases. She was the daughter of David and Mary Snyder, and was born April 26, 1849, at Colerain Forge, Huntingdon county, where she spent her early life. In November, 1879, she was married to George Austin, at Barre Forge, and they lived a short time at that place, later moving to Milesburg, where her husband died January 1, 1903. Shortly after, Mrs. Austin removed to Tyrone and had lived here ever since. For the past two years, she had made her home with her brother. Mrs. Austin was raised a Methodist and lived a consistent christian life. She is survived by five step-children, and these brothers: Miles and Wilson S. Snyder, of Tyrone, and H. M., of Omaha, Neb. Funeral services were held at the home of Miles Snyder at 2 o'clock Tuesday afternoon, in charge of Rev. E. G. Sawyer, pastor of the First United Brethren church. Interment was made at Tyrone.

Mrs. Sarah J. Royer Dead.

Mrs. Sarah J. Royer died Monday morning at the home of her daughter, Mrs. C. E. Saunders, at Juniata. The deceased lady was advanced in years and her death from a complication of diseases followed a decline of several months duration. Mrs. Royer was born in Boalsburg, December 7, 1843 and on June 5, 1862 became the wife of W. W. Royer, now deceased thirteen years. She removed to Juniata from Centre Hall and for the past eleven years found a pleasant home there with her daughter and son-in-law. The deceased was a gentle Christian woman, beloved of all with whom she came in touch. She was a loyal adherent of the Methodist Episcopal faith being at the time of her death a member of the First church in Juniata. She is survived by the following children Anna, wife of E. C. Harter, of Centre Hall; Sarah, wife of W. W. Bible, and Edith, wife of C. J. Smith, both of Bellefonte; William L. and Carrie, wife of C. E. Saunders, both of Juniata. Funeral services were held Tuesday at 3 o'clock and Wednesday morning the remains were taken to Sprucetown cemetery for interment.

John H. Herman Dead.

John Henry Herman died last Sunday morning at 8.30 o'clock at his late home at Pleasant Gap. He had been ill about two weeks prior to his death, although he had not enjoyed good health for perhaps one year or longer. He was a well known and highly esteemed resident of that section and news of his death was received with sincere sorrow by many friends. Funeral services were held Wednesday afternoon at 1.30 o'clock from the late home. Burial was made at Pleasant Gap. The deceased was born in College Township September 25th, 1862. Surviving to mourn his passing away are his widow and these children: Miller Herman and Mrs. Harry Grove, of near Shiloh; Duncan, John, Elsie and Edith all at home. Surviving also are a brother and sister: Clark Herman, of State College, and Mrs. Frank Keen, of Pleasant Gap.

NEW POST TOASTIES

In the growth of corn there is a period when the kernels are plumped out with a vegetable milk, most nutritious (roasting ears). As it slowly ripens this hardens and finally becomes almost flinty.

This nutritious part of the corn is cooked, seasoned, rolled thin, and toasted by a new process which enhances the true corn flavour.

Different from ordinary corn flakes, the New Post Toasties have a distinctive form and flavour; and they keep their appetizing crispness, even after cream or milk is added.

These Superior Corn Flakes come oven-fresh in tight wax-sealed packages; and they cost no more then ordinary "corn flakes" Insist upon having

SYNOPSIS.

After the finding of Wu Fang's body and Kennedy's disappearance a submarine appears the following morning on the bay. A man plunges overboard from it and swims ashore. It is the entrance of Marcius Del Mar into America. At the Dodge home one of Wu Fang's men is trying to obtain information of Kennedy and the lost torpedo. His plan is blocked by Del Mar's arrival, who also succeeds in winning Elaine's confidence. Later she is warned by a little old man to be careful. Del Mar's mission at the Dodge house was to locate and recover the torpedo. He would have been successful had it not been for Elaine's dog, Rusty, who dug it from the flower pot, while Del Mar and Elaine were talking only a few feet away. Rusty carried the torpedo to the attic. The little old man meets Del Mar at the Dodge home. They draw guns together, gases from the exploded shells of the old man's revolver overcome Del Mar and Elaine, and the old man of mystery escapes.

TWENTY-SIXTH EPISODE

THE MASQUERADE BALL.

So confident was Elaine that Kennedy was still alive that she would not admit to herself what to the rest of us seemed obvious.

She even refused to accept Aunt Josephine's hints and decided to give a masquerade ball which she had planned as the last event of the season before she closed the Dodge town house and opened her country house on the shore of Connecticut.

It was shortly after the strange appearance of the fussy old gentleman that I dropped in one afternoon to find Elaine addressing invitations, while Aunt Josephine helped her. As we chatted, I picked up one of the pile and mechanically contemplated the address:

"M. Del Mar, Hotel La Costa, New York City."

"I don't like that fellow," I remarked, shaking my head dubiously.

"Oh, you're—jealous, Walter," laughed Elaine, taking the envelope away from me and piling it again with the others.

Thus it was that in the morning's mail, Del Mar, along with the rest of us, received a neatly engraved little invitation:

Miss Elaine Dodge
Requests
the Pleasure of Your Presence at the Masquerade Ball
to Be Given at Her Residence on Friday
Evening, June 1st.

"Good!" he exclaimed, reaching for the telephone, "I'll go."

* * * * * * *

In a restaurant in the white light district two of those who had been engaged in the preliminary plot to steal Kennedy's wireless torpedo model, the young woman stenographer who had betrayed her trust and the man to whom she had passed the model out of the window in Washington, were seated at a table.

So secret had been the relations of all those in the plot that one group did not know the other, and the strangest methods of communication had been adopted.

The man removed a cover from a dish. Underneath, perhaps without even the waiter's knowledge, was a note.

"Here are the orders at last," he whispered to the girl, unfolding and reading the note. "Look. 'The model of the torpedo is somewhere in her house. Go tonight to the ball as a masquerader and search for it.'"

"Oh, splendid!" exclaimed the girl. "I'm crazy for a little society after this grind. Pay the check and let's get out and choose our costumes."

The man paid the check and they left hurriedly. Half an hour later they were at a costumer's shop choosing their disguises, both careful to get the fullest masks that would not excite suspicion.

* * * * * * *

It was the night of the masquerade.

During the afternoon Elaine had been thinking more than ever of Kennedy. It all seemed unreal to her. More than once she stopped to look at his photograph. Several times she checked herself on the point of tears.

"No," she said to herself with a sort of grim determination. "No—he is alive. He will come back to me—he will."

And yet she had a feeling of terrific loneliness which even her most powerful efforts could not throw off. She was determined to go through with the ball, now that she had started it, but she was really glad when it came time to dress, for even that took her mind from her brooding.

As Marie finished helping her put on a very effective and conspicuous costume, Aunt Josephine entered her dressing room.

"Are you ready, my dear?" she asked, adjusting the mask which she carried so that no one would recognize her as Martha Washington.

"In just a minute, auntie," answered Elaine, trying hard to put out of her mind how Craig would have liked her dress.

Somewhat earlier, in my own apartment, I had been arraying myself as Boum-Boum and modestly admiring the imitation I made of a circus clown as I did a couple of comedy steps before the mirror.

But I was not really so light-hearted. I could not help thinking of what this night might have been if Kennedy had been alive. Indeed, I was glad to take up my white mask, throw a long coat over my outlandish costume and hurry off in my waiting car in order to forget everything that reminded me of him in the apartment.

Already a continuous stream of guests was trickling in from carriages at the curb to the Dodge door, while a gaping crowd surrounded the canopy on the sidewalk.

As I entered the ballroom it was really a brilliant and picturesque assemblage. Of course I recognized Elaine in spite of her mask, almost immediately.

Characteristically, she was talking to the one most striking figure on the floor, a tall man in red—a veritable Mephistopheles. As the music started, Elaine and his Satanic majesty laughingly fox-trotted off, but were not lost to me in the throng.

I soon found myself talking to a young lady in spotted domino. She seemed to have a peculiar fascination for me, yet she did not monopolize all my attention. As we trotted past the door, I could see down the hall. Jennings was still admitting late arrivals, and I caught a glimpse of one costumed as a gray friar, his cowl over his head and his eyes masked.

Chatting, we had circled about to the conservatory. A number of couples were there and, through the palms, I saw Elaine and Mephisto laughingly make their way.

As my spotted domino partner and I swung around again, I happened to catch another glimpse of the gray friar. He was not dancing, but walking, or rather stalking, about the edge of the room, gazing about as if searching for someone.

In the conservatory, Elaine and Mephisto had seated themselves in the breeze of an open window, somewhat in the shadow.

"You are Miss Dodge," he said earnestly.

"You knew me?" she laughed, "And you?"

He raised his mask, disclosing the handsome face and fascinating eyes of Del Mar.

"I hope you don't think I'm here in character," he laughed easily, as she started a bit.

"I—I—well, I didn't think it was you," she blurted out.

"Ah—then there is someone else you care more to dance with?"

"No—no one—no."

"I may hope, then?"

He had moved closer and almost touched her hand. The pointed hood of the gray friar in the palms showed that at last he saw what he sought.

"No—no. Please—excuse me," she murmured rising and hurrying back to the ballroom.

A subtle smile spread over the gray friar's masked face.

Of course I had known Elaine. Whether she knew me at once I don't know or whether it was an accident, but she approached me as I paused in the dance a moment with my domino girl.

"From the—sublime—to the ridiculous," she cried excitedly.

My partner gave her a sharp glance. "You will excuse me?" she said, and, as I bowed, almost ran off to the conservatory, leaving Elaine to dance off with me.

* * * * * * *

Del Mar, quite surprised at the sudden flight of Elaine from his side, followed more slowly through the palms.

As he did so he passed a Mexican attired in brilliant native costume. At a sign from Del Mar he paused and received a small package which Del Mar slipped to him, then passed on as though nothing had happened. The keen eyes of the gray friar, however, had caught the little action and he quietly slipped out after the Mexican bolero.

Just then the domino girl hurried into the conservatory. "What's doing?" she asked eagerly.

"Keep close to me," whispered Del Mar, as she nodded and they left the conservatory, not apparently in company.

Upstairs, away from the gayety of the ballroom, the bolero made his way until he came to Elaine's room, dimly lighted. With a quick glance about, he entered cautiously, closed the door, and approached a closet which he opened. There was a safe built into the wall.

As he stooped over, the man unwrapped the package Del Mar had handed him and took out a curious little instrument. Inside was a dry battery and a most peculiar instrument, something like a little flat telephone transmitter, yet attached by wires to ear pieces that fitted over the head after the manner of those of a wireless detector.

He adjusted the headpiece and held the flat instrument against the safe, close to the combination which he began to turn slowly. It was a burglar's microphone, used for picking combination locks. As the combination turned, a slight sound was made when the proper number came opposite the working point. Imperceptible ordinarily to even the most sensitive ear, to an ear trained it was comparatively easy to recognize the fall of the tumblers over this sensitive little instrument.

As he worked, the door behind him opened softly and the gray friar entered, closing it and moving noiselessly over back of the shelter of a big mahogany highboy, around which he could watch.

At last the safe was opened. Rapidly the man went through its contents. "Confound it!" he muttered. "She didn't put it here—anyhow."

The bolero started to close the safe when he heard a noise in the room and looked curiously back of him. Del Mar himself, followed by the domino girl, entered.

"I've opened it," whispered the emissary stepping out of the closet and meeting them, "but I can't find the—"

"Hands up—all of you!"

They turned in time to see the gray friar's gun yawning at them. Most politely he lined them up. Still holding his gun ready, he lifted up the mask of the domino girl.

"So—it's you?" he grunted.

He was about to lift the mask of the Mexican, when the bolero leaped at him. Del Mar piled in. But sounds downstairs alarmed them and the emissary, released, fled quickly with the girl. The gray friar, however, kept his hold on Mephistopheles, as if he had been wrestling with a veritable devil.

* * * * * * *

Down in the hall, I had again met my domino girl, a few minutes after I had resigned Elaine to another of her numerous admirers.

"I thought you deserted me," I said, somewhat piqued.

"You deserted me," she parried, nervously. "However, I'll forgive you if you'll get me an ice."

I hastened to do so. But no sooner had I gone than Del Mar stalked through the hall and went upstairs. My domino girl was watching for him and followed.

When I returned with the ice, I looked about, but she was gone. It was scarcely a moment later, however, that I saw her hurry downstairs, accompanied by the Mexican bolero. I stepped forward to speak to her, but she almost ran past me without a word.

"A nut," I remarked under my breath, pushing back my mask.

I started to eat the ice myself, when, a moment later Elaine passed through the hall with a Spanish cavalier.

"Oh, Walter, here you are," she laughed. "I've been looking all over for you. Thank you very much, sire," she bowed with mock civility to the cavalier. "It was only one dance, you know. Please let me talk to Boum-Boum."

The cavalier bowed reluctantly and left us.

"What are you doing here alone?" she asked, taking off her own mask. "How warm it is."

Before I could reply, I heard someone coming downstairs back of me, but not in time to turn.

"Elaine's dressing table," a voice whispered in my ear.

I turned suddenly. It was the gray friar. Before I could even reach out to grasp his robe, he was gone.

"Another nut!" I exclaimed, involuntarily.

"Why, what did he say?" asked Elaine.

"Something about your dressing table."

"My dressing table?" she repeated.

We ran quickly up the steps. Elaine's room showed every evidence of having been the scene of a struggle, as she went over to the table. There she picked up a rose and under it a piece of paper on which were some words printed with pencil roughly.

"Look!" she cried, as I read with her:

"Do honest assistants search safes? Let no one see this but Jameson."

"What does it mean?" I asked.

"My safe!" she cried, moving to a closet. As she opened the door, imagine our surprise at seeing Del Mar lying on the floor, bound and gagged before the open safe. "Get my scissors on the dresser," cried Elaine.

I did so, hastily cutting the cords that bound Del Mar.

"What does it all mean?" asked Elaine as he rose and stretched himself.

Still clutching his throat, as if it hurt, Del Mar choked, "I found a man, a foreign agent, searching the safe. But he overcame me and escaped."

"Oh—then that is what the—"

Elaine checked herself. She had been about to hand the note to Del Mar when an idea seemed to come to her. Instead, she crumpled it up and thrust it into her bosom.

On the street the bolero and the domino girl were hurrying away as fast as they could.

Meanwhile, the gray friar had overcome Del Mar, had bound and gagged him and thrust him into the closet. Then he wrote the note and laid it, with a rose from a vase, on Elaine's dressing table before he, too, left the place.

More than ever I was at a loss to make it out.

* * * * * * *

It was the day after the masquerade ball that a taxicab drove up to the Dodge house and a very trim but not overdressed young lady was announced as "Miss Bertholdi."

"Miss Dodge?" she inquired as Jennings held open the portieres and she entered the library where Elaine and Aunt Josephine were.

If Elaine had only known, it was the domino girl of the night before who handed her a note and sat down, looking about so demurely, while Elaine read:

My Dear Miss Dodge:

The bearer, Miss Bertholdi, is an operative of mine. I would appreciate it if you would employ her in some capacity in your house, as I have reason to believe that certain foreign agents will soon make another attempt to find Kennedy's lost torpedo model.

Sincerely,
M. DEL MAR.

Elaine looked up from reading the note. Miss Bertholdi was good to look at, and Elaine liked pretty girls about her.

"Jennings," she ordered, "call Marie."

To the butler and her maid, Elaine gave the most careful instructions regarding Miss Bertholdi. "She can help you finish the packing, first," she concluded.

The girl thanked her and went out with Jennings and Marie, asking Jennings to pay her taxicab driver with money she gave him, which he did, bringing her grip into the house.

Later in the day, Elaine had both Marie and Bertholdi carrying armfuls of her dresses from the closets in her room up to the attic, where the last of her trunks were being packed. On one of the many trips, Bertholdi came alone into the attic, her arms full as usual. Before her were two trunks, very much alike, open and nearly packed. She laid her armful of clothes on a chair near by and pulled one of the trunks forward. On the door lay the trays of both trunks already packed. Bertholdi began packing her burden in one trunk which was marked in big white letters, "E. Dodge."

Down in Elaine's room at the time Jennings entered. "The expressman for the trunks is here, Miss Elaine," he announced.

"Is he? I wonder whether they are all ready?" Elaine replied hurrying out of the room. "Tell him to wait."

In the attic, Bertholdi was still at work, keeping her eyes open to execute the mission on which Del Mar had sent her.

Rusty, forgotten in the excitement by Jennings, had roamed at will through the house and seemed quite interested. For this was the trunk behind which he had his cache of treasures.

As Bertholdi started to move behind the trunk, Rusty could stand it no longer. He darted ahead of her into his hiding place. Among the dog biscuit and bones was the torpedo model which he had dug up from the palm pot in the conservatory. He seized it in his mouth and turned to carry it off.

There, in his path, was his enemy, the new girl. Quick as a flash, she saw what it was Rusty had, and grabbed at it.

"Get out!" she ordered, looking at her prize in triumph and turning it over and over in her hands.

At that moment she heard Elaine on the stairs. What should she do? She must hide it. She looked about. There was the tray, packed and lying on the floor near the trunk marked "E. Dodge." She thrust it hastily into the tray, pulling a garment over it.

"Nearly through?" panted Elaine.

"Yes, Miss Dodge."

"Then please tell the expressman to come up."

Bertholdi hesitated, chagrined. Yet there was nothing to do but obey. She looked at the trunk by the tray to fix it in her mind, then went downstairs.

As she left the room, Elaine lifted the tray into the trunk and tried to close the lid. But the tray was too high. She looked puzzled. On the floor was another tray almost identical.

"The wrong trunk," she smiled to herself, lifting the tray out and putting the other one in, while she placed the first tray with the torpedo concealed in the other, unmarked, trunk where it belonged. Then she closed the first trunk.

A moment later the expressman entered, with Bertholdi.

"You may take that one," indicated Elaine.

"Miss Dodge, here's something else to go in," said Bertholdi in desperation, picking up her dress.

"Never mind. Put it in the other trunk."

Bertholdi was baffled, but she managed to control herself. She must get word to Del Mar about that trunk marked "E. Dodge."

Late that afternoon, before a cheap restaurant, might have been seen old old friend who had posed as Bailey and as the Mexican. He entered the restaurant and made his way to the first of a row of booths on one side.

"Hello," he nodded to a girl in the booth.

Bertholdi nodded back and he took his seat. She had begged an hour or two off on some pretext.

Outside the restaurant, a heavily bearded man had been standing looking intently at nothing in particular when Bartholdi entered. As Bailey came along, he followed and took the next booth, his hat pulled over his eyes. In a moment he was listening, his ear close up to the partition.

"Well, what luck?" asked Bailey. "Did you get a clue?"

"I had the torpedo model in my hands," she replied excitedly telling the story. "It is in a trunk marked "E. Dodge."

All this and more the bearded stranger drank in eagerly.

A moment later Bailey and Bartholdi left the booth and went out of the restaurant, followed cautiously by the stranger. On the street the two emissaries of Del Mar stopped a moment to talk.

"All right, I'll telephone him," she said as they parted in opposite directions.

The stranger took an instant to make up his mind, then followed the girl. She continued down the street until she came to a store with telephone booths. The bearded stranger followed still, into the next booth, but did not call a number. He had his ear to the wall.

He could hear her call Del Mar, and although he could not hear Del Mar's answers, she repeated enough for him to catch the drift. Finally, she came out, and the stranger, instead of following her further, took the other direction hurriedly.

* * * * * * *

Del Mar himself received the news with keen excitement. Quickly he gave instructions and prepared to leave his rooms.

A short time later his car pulled up before the La Costa and, in a long duster and cap, Del Mar jumped in and was off.

Scarcely had his car swung up the avenue when, from an alleyway down the street from the hotel, the chug-chug of a motorcycle sounded. A bearded man, his face further hidden by a pair of goggles, ran out with his machine, climbed on and followed.

On out into the country Del Mar's car sped. At every turn the motorcycle dropped back a bit, observed the turn, then crept up and took it, too. So they went for some time.

* * * * * * *

On the level of the Grand Central where the trains left for the Connecticut shore where Elaine's summer home was located Bailey was now edging his way through the late crowd down the platform. He paused before the baggage car just as one of the baggage motor trucks rolled up loaded high with trunks and bags. He stepped back as the men loaded the baggage on the car, watching carefully.

As they tossed on one trunk marked "E. Dodge," he turned with a subtle look and walked away. Finally he squirmed around to the other platform. No one was looking and he mounted the rear of the baggage car and opened the door. There was the baggage man sitting by the side door, his back to Bailey. Bailey closed the door softly and squeezed behind a pile of trunks and bags.

* * * * * * *

Finally Del Mar reached a spot on the railroad where there were both a curve and a grade ahead. He stopped his car and got out.

Down the road the bearded and goggled motorcyclist stopped just in time to avoid observation. To make sure, he drew a pocket field glass and leveled it ahead.

"Wait here," ordered Del Mar. "I'll call when I want you."

Back on the road the bearded cyclist could see Del Mar move down the track though he could not hear the directions. It was not necessary, however. He dragged his machine into the bushes, hid it, and hurried down the road on foot.

Del Mar's chauffeur was waiting idly at the wheel when suddenly the cold nose of a revolver was stuck under his chin.

"Not a word—and hands up—or I'll let the moonlight through you," growled out a harsh voice.

Nevertheless the chauffeur managed to lurch out of the car and the bearded stranger, whose revolver it was, found that he would not dare to shoot. Del Mar was not far enough away to risk it.

The chauffeur flung himself on him and they struggled fiercely, rolling over and over in the dust of the road.

But the bearded stranger had a grip of steel and managed to get his fingers about the chauffeur's throat as an added insurance against a cry for help.

He choked him literally into insensibility. Then, with a strength that he did not seem to possess, he picked up the limp, blue-faced body and carried it off the road and around the car.

* * * * * * *

In the baggage car, the baggage man was smoking a surreptitious pipe of powerful tobacco between stations and contemplating the scenery thoughtfully through the open door.

As the engine slowed up to take a curve and a grade, Bailey, who had now and then taken a peep out of a little grated window above him, crept out from his hiding place. Already he had slipped a dark silk mask over his face.

As he made his way among the trunks and boxes, the train lurched and the baggage man, who had his back to Bailey, heard him catch himself. He turned and leaped to his feet. Bailey closed with him instantly.

Over and over they rolled. Bailey had already drawn his revolver before he left his hiding place. A shot, however, would have been fatal to his part in the plans and was only a last resort, for it would have brought the trainmen.

Finally Bailey rolled his man over and getting his right arm free, dealt the baggage man a fierce blow with the butt of the gun.

The train was now pulling slowly up the grade. More time had been spent in overcoming the baggage man than he expected and Bailey had to work quickly. He dragged the trunk marked "E. Dodge" from the pile to the door and glanced out.

* * * * * * *

Just around the curve in the railroad Del Mar was waiting, straining his eyes down the track.

There was the train, puffing up the grade. As it approached he rose and waved his arms. It was the signal and he waited anxiously. Had his plans been carried out?

The train passed. From the baggage car came a trunk catapulted out by a strong arm. It hurtled through the air and landed with its own and the train's momentum.

Over it rolled in the bushes, then stopped—unbroken, for Elaine had had it designed to resist even the most violent baggage smasher.

Del Mar ran to it. As the tail light of the train disappeared he turned around in the direction from which he had come, placed his two hands to his mouth and shouted.

* * * * * * *

From the side of the road by Del Mar's car the bearded motorcyclist had just emerged, buttoning the chauffeur's clothes and adjusting his goggles to his own face.

As he approached the car, he heard a shout. Quickly he tore off the black beard which had been his disguise and tossed it into the grass. Then he drew the coat high up about his neck.

"All right!" he shouted back, starting along the road.

Together he and Del Mar managed to scramble up the embankment to the road and, one at each handle of the trunk, they carried it back to the car, piling it in the back.

The improvised chauffeur started to take his place at the wheel and Del Mar had his foot on the running board to get beside him, when the now unbearded stranger suddenly swung about and struck Del Mar full in the face. It sent him reeling back into the dust.

The engine of the car had been running and before Del Mar could recover consciousness the stranger had shot the car ahead, leaving Del Mar prone in the roadway.

* * * * * * *

The train, with Bailey on it, had not gained much speed, yet it was a perilous undertaking to leap. Still, it was more so now to remain. The baggage man stirred. It was now a case of murder or a getaway.

Bailey jumped.

Scratched and bruised and shaken, he scrambled to his feet in the briers along the track. He staggered up the road, pulled himself together, then hurried back as fast as his barked shins would let him.

He came to the spot which he recognized as that where he had thrown off the trunk. He saw the tramped and broken bushes and made for the road.

He had not gone far when he saw, far down, Del Mar suddenly attacked and thrown down, apparently by his own chauffeur. Bailey ran forward, but it was too late. The car was gone.

As he came up to Del Mar lying outstretched in the road, Del Mar was just recovering consciousness.

"What was the matter?" he asked. "Was he a traitor?"

He caught sight of the real chauffeur on the ground, stripped.

Del Mar was furious. "No," he swore, "it was that confounded gray friar again, I think. And he has the trunk, too!"

* * * * * * *

Speeding up the road the former masquerader and motorcyclist stopped at last.

Eagerly he leaped out of Del Mar's car and dragged the trunk over the side regardless of the enamel.

It was the work of only a moment for him to break the lock with a pocket jimmy.

One after another he pulled out and shook the clothes until frocks and gowns and lingerie lay strewn all about.

But there was not a thing in the trunk that even remotely resembled the torpedo model.

The stranger scowled.

Where was it?

FORGETS WAR AT WEDDING

Had it not been for the war which is engaging the German nation, the wedding of Fraeulin Isa von Bethmann-Hollweg, the daughter of the German imperial chancellor, to Count von Zech-Burkersroda would have been a grand court fete, with all its attending pomp and ceremony. But in keeping with the serious affairs of the nation, the ceremony was marked by its simplicity. The photograph shows the German chancellor walking down the flower-strewn road with his daughter by his side. In the happiness of the moment, the grizzled old veteran forgot everything else but the big event, the wedding of his daughter to the man of her choice.

BOY OF 12 KILLS A THIEF

Tennessee Youth Shoots Man Who Is Trying to Rob His Mother.

Covington, Tenn.—Virge Goforth, twelve, shot and killed Thomas G. Pollard, thirty-five, while Pollard was beating and attempting to rob the boy's mother at their home on Island No. 35 in the Mississippi river.

Pollard, who formerly boarded at Mrs. Goforth's home, met her on her way to the field and learning she had $4 demanded the money. He grabbed the woman, knocked her down and choked her, at the same time rifling her pockets.

Then young Goforth fired at Pollard, killing him instantly.

A coroner's jury returned a verdict that the boy was justified.

"MUST WAIT," SAID THE JUDGE

St. Louis Girl Wanted to Marry a Burglar Whom She Expected to Reform.

Kansas City, Mo.—Love may laugh at locksmiths, as has been alleged, but love failed when it attempted to open the locks of the county jail here and permit Miss Violet Boehm of St. Louis to marry Thomas Knight, held in the jail for attempted burglary. Miss Boehm is nineteen and Knight is twenty-two.

The girl went to a lawyer and then called on Judge Lathshaw. She said she could reform Knight, who readily agreed.

"I won't listen to such a thing," Judge Lathshaw said. "You'll have to wait until he is a free man."

"I'll wait for him forever," she said

MONKEY GETS A MONUMENT

Pet Buried at East Summit, N. J., With Jeweled Collar Around Neck.

East Summit, N. J.—There has just been set up in the grounds of the Humphreys home in Morris avenue a monument to the memory of Snookie, a pet monkey of Mr. and Mrs. Frank E. Humphreys, which died last fall. The stone is of Vermont granite and bears the following inscription:

"In loving memory of Snookie, a Brazilian marmoset, died September 29, 1914."

The monkey was buried in a specially prepared coffin, and around its neck was placed a jeweled collar. The Humphreys lived in East Summit many years, but their home now is in New York.

HUNT BEETLES IN ARIZONA

Collector Who Has 150,000 Specimens of the Insects Looking for Still More.

Tuscon, Ariz.—Beetle hunting in the mountains around Tuscon is good at this season; and Charles Dury of Cincinnati, who has a collection of 150,000 specimens, is here to add to the number. He will first try for the game in Stone Cabin canyon in the Santa Rita mountains.

It is a small and rare beetle that Drury is after, fellows only 1-16 of an inch long.

"Arizona has more species of insect life than any other state in the Union and more remarkable insects," said he; "it would take many years of constant work and investigation to make anything like a complete collection of specimens of Arizona insect fauna."

STRUCK WHEN READY

Italy Spent Ten Months Preparing for War.

Perfect Military Machine Is Organized With Remarkable Secrecy and Speed—General Cadorna an Italian Joffre.

Rome.—It has generally been thought that organization was not a strong point with the Italians. But today the Italian army shows how fine a work of organization has been accomplished. But the ten months while Italy was neutral were employed in organizing, with remarkable secrecy and speed, a perfect military machine. It was known that Italy was preparing, but how extensively was a well-kept secret.

Today she has no lack of "high explosives" or of anything else (down to masks against poisoned gas), which a close study of the war in other parts of Europe has shown to be necessary. The credit is generally divided between Premier Salandra, General Cadorna, the chief of staff, and Zupelli, the minister for war. These three have shown themselves to be great men in this work of preparation and foresight.

General Cadorna, by the way, is not commander in chief, but chief of staff. For the king is commander in chief. Victor Emmanuel III is daily winning for himself the love of his soldiers. With ceaseless activity he rushes from point to point at the front, appearing where he is least expected, to share a hasty meal with the officers, and go round to say to the men a few words of sympathy and encouragement, often under fire.

General Cadorna seems to be an Italian Joffre. He has not yet been so fiercely tested. Like Joffre, Cadorna hates politics in war, talk, excitement and humbug of all sorts. Organization and discipline are his instruments, and he has given the country a quiet confidence in slowly maturing results, which is just what every country must have in order to endure this long and terrible war of exhaustion.

Not that Cadorna is slow to strike far otherwise. For one recalls the rapid seizure of the innumerable passes of the Trentine and Carnic Alps in the first days of the war, before the Austrians had got their men up from Galicia. Besides those called out by conscription, 300,000 volunteers enlisted before recruiting was stopped by the authorities. Italy has a great reserve of men. And she has less to fear for her race from the losses of this war than any great nation except Russia. For her birth rate is natural and high. Little children are not only loved in Italy, but they are plentiful.

There is a notable absence of "tall stories" from the front in Italian talk and in the Italian press. The stories, perfectly reasonable and unsensational, of course emphasize the courage and endurance of the troops about which there is no shadow of doubt, and markedly so their humanity. Stories of the kind treatment of Austrian prisoners and wounded are told everywhere. All stories, some told to me by eye witnesses of high military standing, emphasize the excellence of the Italian artillery and its superiority to the Austrian. The natural and artificial strength of the enemy's prepared positions on the Isonzo alone renders progress slow.

There is a great development of trained nursing by Italian ladies. This began during the earthquakes of recent years and the Tripoli war. It is now a great movement of the day, and a valuable step forward in Italian life where woman nurses have been till recently notable by their absence.

CARRIES COINS IN HIS EARS

California Man Has Cash Register System That Is Exclusive and Unique.

Fall River Mills, Cal.—Women carry their loose change in their stockings, children put their money in their mouths, but Norris Bethel, head clerk of Florin Brothers of this place, makes a cash register of his ears.

When he is selling goods and is in a hurry for a nickel or a dime to make change, he reaches to one ear or the other and finds the needed coin.

Or, if he receives a small coin and is at some distance from the cash register, he puts it into one of his ears until he has use for it or until he is close to the cash register and can relieve himself.

The system is considered unique, and it is Bethel's exclusively.

IRON IN LOG STRIPS SAW

Horseshoe Imbedded in Tree for Half Century Cuts Teeth From Saw.

Vancouver, Wash.—Imbedded so deeply in a log that the bark had grown over it, a big horseshoe was found in a log at the Beer sawmill, near Manor, recently. The saw was stripped of teeth by the shoe when it struck.

It is believed by the sawmill men that the shoe was nailed to a tree by someone more than half a century ago and that the tree gradually grew around and covered it with wood and bark.

NOVEL COSTUME BALL

The Casino at Narragansett pier was the scene of the novel black and white costume ball, given by Mrs. Talbot Hanan. The Casino, arrayed with streamers of black and white and balcony decorated with checks of similar colors and the entrance designed with the same effect, formed a fitting background to the costumes of the participants. It was the first notable ball of the season and was preceded by many dinner parties. One of the features of the affair was the hostess, Mrs. Talbot Hanan, in her black and white taffeta gown trimmed with black velvet and ornamented with figures. A striking part of the costume were the pantalettes and the skipping rope which she carried throughout the evening.

"BLUE MAN" OF THE OZARKS

Periodical Appearance Is Reported by Tie Haulers Near Willow Springs, Mo.

Willow Springs, Mo.—The periodical reappearance of the "Blue Man of Spring Creek" was reported by the haulers who reached this city from Douglas county. The supposed "wild man" has not been seen at his old haunts since 1911 until about six weeks ago, when O. C. Collins, while searching for two lambs, got a glimpse of the man while he was attempting to capture a hog.

Since then other persons have seen the "blue man," according to word brought in by the tie haulers. Jay Taber saw him a few days ago, but he ran up the mountainside. Taber told his neighbors that the man's hair is now white, but that he is still powerful looking.

LOOPS THE LOOP HIGH UP

Army Aviator Performs Remarkable Feat While 4,000 Feet in the Air.

San Diego, Cal.—Lieut. Byron Q. Jones, the young army aviator who recently established a record for continuous flight while carrying a passenger, was receiving congratulations the other day on account of his achievement when he looped the loop four consecutive times at an altitude of 4,000 feet. He used a standard army biplane, the first time, it is said, a machine of that kind has been employed in such a performance.

The motor of the aeroplane stopped while the aviator was on his back in the fourth loop, but he succeeded in completing the circle and then volplaned down.

WOLVES ON THE BATTLEFIELD

Hungry Animals Are Invading the Bloody Scenes of Conflict in Europe.

History tells us that on Napoleon's fatal retreat from Moscow the wearied troop were constantly harassed by hungry wolf packs. Today it is said that the wolves have gathered from their fastnesses in the forests of Poland and South Russia to gorge upon the battlefields of the eastern front, London Tit-Bits remarks.

Some time ago an officer gave a graphic description of the long lines of wolves stealing from the coverts at nightfall, passing within a few feet of him as he lay wounded, and he stated that the sight of these gaunt forms, dimly limned against the dark sky, as they busied themselves with their ghostly feast, would never be effaced from his mind.

Referring to the movements of wild boars, M. Cunisset-Carnot states that by the middle of August, when heavy cannonading was proceeding along a vast front in northern France, rumors of strange occurrences began to come in. Foresters and woodmen reported that south of the lines of battle herds of wild boars began to invade country to which they were before entire strangers. So rapidly did their numbers increase that soon they were to be met with everywhere.

PEER WHO SWAM NIAGARA

Skeptical American Not Satisfied With Desborough's Statement So His Lordship Does It Again.

Among the peerage a fine patriotism has been shown during the war, but no member of the nobility has interested himself more in patriotic causes than Lord Desborough.

He is known as one of the most remarkable sportsmen of the day, but very few people are aware that he has swum Niagara Falls on two separate occasions.

After accomplishing the feat once he was about to return to England, and before the boat sailed was discussing the subject with some friends.

An American, who was standing by, skeptically at last broke in with: "Did I hear you say you had swum Niagara?"

"Yes, I have," answered his lordship.

"That's not good enough!" laughed the Yankee. "No man could attempt it and come out alive."

Lord Desborough shrugged his shoulders.

"Then I had better go back and swim it again," he said. So, to the amazement of the American, he calmly went back and swam Niagara for the second time.

THAT STRANGE NEW NOTE

The Student of Ornithology Could Not Absolutely Identify the Bird.

One evening an amateur nature student, notebook in hand, penetrated the wilds of a cow pasture and paused to take advantage of the practical, although crude, knowledge of a gray-beard countryman who sat contentedly on a log.

"There is a strange bird-note this evening," she began, with sweet condescension. "I wonder—perhaps you can tell me what bird it is?"

The old man removed his pipe for an instant.

"I heerd a robin, mum," he admitted, puffing away at his pipe before the last word was out of his mouth.

"Oh, no!" The student of ornithology shook her head, prettily impatient. "It is a new call, different from anything I have yet come across. Can't you hear it—now?"

Once more the old man perfunctorily removed his pipe, and both he and his questioner strained to listen. There was a bewilderment of woodland and farmyard sounds.

"There," whispered the girl, "that full, shrill note! Can't you hear it! In that direction?"

A light broke over the old man's face, and the lines of intense effort vanished from his forehead.

"Oh, that noise?" He threw back his head with a chuckle of relief "That's a frog, mum."

Keep your money in bank, said one of our local papers last week. This is good sound advice. Let us care for yours.

—and I'll Be Laid Up Several Weeks Longer

WHY, a brick fell from the third floor of a new building and connected with my head. In a hospital for a long time with a cracked skull, fever, delirious, and heaven knows what all.

But every month, regular as clockwork, along came a check for $200 from the ÆTNA. You see, my ÆTNA ACCIDENT POLICY calls for $50 weekly while totally disabled, $25 a week while partly out of commission, and also surgeon's fees or hospital bills. Makes it hard for me, eh? Man, I'm an optimist of the purest ray serene.

What did the policy cost? If I told you how little, you'd say I'm still raving. Come up tonight and I'll tell you. So long!

STETSON HATS

Announcement is made by the Panama-Pacific International Exposition the Grand Prize---Highest Award---is conferred on Stetson Hats, for superiority of quality, perfection o workmanship and excellence of style.

This is the tenth great International Award given John B. Stetson Company---beginning with the Centennial in 1876, including three at Paris and those at Chicago and St. Louis, and now culminating with the highest honors at San Francisco.

The award comes on the Fiftieth Anniversary of the John B. Stetson Company---giving official expression to the verdict of the American public, which has made this the largest hat manufacturing enterprise in the world, engaging 5000 skilled workers.

It is significant that the Panama-Pacific Award recognizes not only the products of the Stetson Company, but its advanced measures for health and comfort in working conditions---and its principle of sharing earnings with its employes.

New fall styles in Stetson Hats are now being shown by Montgomery & Co.
